BLOGate

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 17, 2010

Any plan for tonight?

I must say, the life for singles like us is becoming increasingly interesting! I finally managed to make my friend confess me what is keeping her busy one evening per week lately and I was quite surprised by her answer: a dating site! But not an usual dating site, sugary ad nauseam and where everyone is looking for a soul mate, but a casual dating site, where to organize one-night stands... And It seems it works, since my friend is particularly happy lately...

I confess I couldn't resist the curiosity and took a look at the site, Casualclub.com ... What can I say,

I was expecting something sordid, with semi porn pictures and embarrassing nicknames, and yet I was really surprised to find a stylish and absolutely not vulgar site. For women it's free, and since I was there I tried to register and, although I must confess that the step on sexual preferences was a bit too explicit, my impression of general good taste was confirmed. The profiles are anonymous, you can't upload photos and the profiles match are proposed automatically by the system, so zero space for unwanted messages from annoying people you don't share the same interests with.

Not everyone may be interested in casual relationships or in being the lover of a married man, but I suggest you take a look, even just out of curiosity. You never know, you may find the ideal lover without even having to try!

